

Nearly all of the executable code is run from the main class. A player objects, and boneyard object are created. They then call domino methods to run the program.

The player class creates a list for the computer and the human that is then called by the main class. The lists created there are the trays

Domino objects are created in the boneyard, since that is wher all of the dominos will be originally pulled from